```html
<!DOCTYPE html>
<html>
<head>
<meta charset="ISO-8859-1">
<title>Astronomy</title>
<link type = "text/css" rel = "stylesheet" href = "Astronomy.css">
<script type="text/javascript" src = "Astronomy.js"></script>
</head>
<body class = "mainbody">

                        <h1 class = "title">Star Formation</h1>

                        <table>

                                <tr>

                                        <td class = "navigationBoxes">Star
Formation</td>

                                </tr>

                                <tr>

                                        <td class = "navigationBoxes">Types of Stars</td>

                                </tr>

                                <tr>

                                        <td class = "navigationBoxes">Star Life
Cycles</td>

                                </tr>

                        </table>

                <img src = "images/mainImage.jpg" class = "titleImage">

```

```html
                    <h3 class = "subHeadings">Star Formation</h3>

                    Stars form from massive clouds of hydrogen and helium called nebulas.

                    The gas in the cloud is pulled together by gravity. This gas keeps accreating and the baby star keeps getting bigger until it hits a critical mass and starts nuclear fusion. Once it has started fusing hydrogen into helium it is considered a star.

                    <img src = "images/Star formation 1.jpg" class =
"mainImage">

                        <img src = "images/star formation 2.jpg" class =
"otherImages">

                        <img src = "images/star formation 3.jpg" class =
"otherImages">

                        <img src = "images/star formation 4.jpg" class =
"otherImages">

                    <img src = "images/advertisment2.jpg" class =
"advertisments" onclick = "randomAd()">

                    <h3 class = "subHeadings">Types of Stars</h3>

                    Depending on how much mass the star gathered while it was growing in the nebula determines what kind of star it will be.

                    The main big categories are supergiants, giants, main sequence, and white dwarf. The graph below shows the properties of each of these stars Luminosity is how much light the star emits.

                    <img src = "images/types of stars 3.jpg" class =
"mainImage">

                        <img src = "images/types of stars 2.jpg" class =
"otherImages">

                        <img src = "images/types of stars 4.jpg" class =
"otherImages">

                        <img src = "images/types of stars 1.jpg" class =
```

```
            "otherImages">

                        <img src = "images/advertisment10.jpg" class =
"advertisments" onclick = "randomAd()">

                        <h3 class = "subHeadings">Life Cycle of Stars</h3>

                        <table>

                                <tr>

                                        <td>Small Stars</td>

                                        <td>Medium Stars</td>

                                        <td>Large Stars</td>

                                </tr>

                                <tr>

                                        <td>Burn through fuel</td>

                                        <td>Burn through most of the fuel</td>

                                        <td>Burn through fuel</td>

                                </tr>

                                <tr>

                                        <td>Expand into red giant</td>

                                        <td>Expand into red giant</td>

                                        <td>Expand into red giant</td>

                                </tr>

                                <tr>

                                        <td>Burn rest of fuel</td>

                                        <td>Burn the rest of the fuel</td>

                                        <td>Burn the rest of the fuel</td>
```

```
                                                </tr>
                                                <tr>
                                                        <td>Outer layers blow off and form pletary nebula</td>
                                                        <td>Explode in a supernova</td>
                                                        <td>Massive supernova turns the core of the star into either a neutron star or a black hole</td>
                                                </tr>
                                        </table>
                                        <img src = "images/life cycle of stars 1.jpg" class =
"mainImage">
                                                <img src = "images/life cycle of stars 2.jpg" class
= "otherImages">
                                                <img src = "images/life cycle of stars 3.jpg" class
= "otherImages">
                                                <img src = "images/life cycle of stars 4.jpg" class
= "otherImages">
                                        <img src = "images/advertisment1.jpg" class =
"advertisments" onclick = "randomAd()">

                                <h3 class = "quizHeader">Quiz</h3>
                                        <h4 class = "questions" id = "questionOne">Where do stars form?</h4>

                                                        <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option1" onclick = "addToAnswers(1.1)">a</button>
                                                        <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option1">Nebulas</h5>

```

```html

                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option2" onclick = "addToAnswers(1.2)">b</button>

                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option2">in Galaxies</h5>

                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option3" onclick = "addToAnswers(1.3)">c</button>

                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option3">From other exploaded stars</h5>

                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option4" onclick = "addToAnswers(1.4)">d</button>

                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option4">In space</h5>

                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option5" onclick = "addToAnswers(1.5)">e</button>

                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option5">Nowhere space is faked by NASA</h5>

                        <h4 class = "questions" id = "questionTwo">What happens when a star burns most of its fuel?</h4>

                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option1" onclick = "addToAnswers(2.1)">a</button>

                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
```

"option1">It turns into a black hole.</h5>

                                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option2" onclick = "addToAnswers(2.2)">b</button>

                                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option2">It becomes a neutron star</h5>

                                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option3" onclick = "addToAnswers(2.3)">c</button>

                                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option3">It expands into a red giant</h5>

                                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option4" onclick = "addToAnswers(2.4)">d</button>

                                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option4">It explodes into a supernova</h5>

                                                <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option5" onclick = "addToAnswers(2.5)">e</button>

                                                <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option5">It goes to the gas station</h5>

                                        <h4 class = "questions" id =
"questionThree">What is the smallest coolest kind of star?</h4>

                                                <button class = "optionChose" id =

```
"option1" onclick = "addToAnswers(3.1)">a</button>

                                        <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option1">White dwarf</h5>

                                        <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option2" onclick = "addToAnswers(3.2)">b</button>

                                        <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option2">Red dwarf</h5>

                                        <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option3" onclick = "addToAnswers(3.3)">c</button>

                                        <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option3">Neutron star</h5>

                                        <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option4" onclick = "addToAnswers(3.4)">d</button>

                                        <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option4">Black hole</h5>

                                        <button class = "optionChose" id =
"option5" onclick = "addToAnswers(3.5)">e</button>

                                        <h5 class = "optionText" id =
"option5">Red giant </h5>

                                    <button class = "gradeButton" onclick =
"checkAnswers()">Grade Now</button>
```

```html

            <button class = "backButton">Back</button>

            <button class = "nextButton">Next</button>

</body>
</html>
```